

Boston Metro Hi-Railers Main Layout Development

In 2011, the Boston Metro Hi-Railers Club moved from Melrose to its current location in Wilmington. In order to accomplish the move, the model train layout was literally cut up into manageable sections, transported to the new location and rejoined together. Once this task was completed, the entire layout was rewired and made operational in time for our first open house held on December 10, 2011.

After five years of work by the members, the layout has sprouted mountains, tunnels, a coalmine, the City of Scranton and the beginnings of other interesting features. It is a labor of love that will likely never end. After all, it is not the destination, but the journey.

Come and visit the club to get a first-hand view of our progress. Go to “EVENTS” for the date of our next Open House.
